

Week In review week 3

This week I really got to do some work related to my logo. I also feel like I have a base of what I might want my site to look like with my wireframe. My next steps are to dive little bit deeper and see what it is going to take to get my site working. I would also like to discuss just how much movement or parallax the site will have, because I'm not quite sure how I want to approach the movement aspect of the site.